

article claims since the original reissue declaration was directed to correct the error and failing to claim the method and there was no mention that an additional error occurred in not specifically claiming the combination of methacrylamide and acrylamide. Such is not deemed necessary in view of the file, the specification, and the fact that a polyacrylamide or methacrylamide could be considered broadly and would be considered so broad as to encompass copolymers of these materials.

All of the remaining claim modifications deal with placing the method claims in proper reissue form.

It is now believed that this application is in condition for publication, the Notice of Allowance having been filed and the Issue Fee paid. Therefor, issuance of this application is earnestly solicited.

Respectfully submitted,
